MERRIMACK VALLEY CREDIT UNION ANNOUNCES NEW BRANCH

Credit Union's sixth branch will better serve New Hampshire members

LAWRENCE, MASS. — Merrimack Valley Credit Union announced this week that it is opening a branch in Seabrook, N.H. Anticipated to open in the summer of 2016, this location will be the credit union's sixth, and second in New Hampshire. This latest branch will be in the Seabrook Commons retail development at the intersection of Route US 1 and Provident Way, and will be in between Walmart and Panera Bread.

"Opening a location in Seabrook is going to be outstanding for the members and the credit union," said Anthony Marino, vice president of operations at Merrimack Valley Credit Union. "We have a strong member base in this very vibrant area of the Lower Merrimack Valley, and this new branch will provide another convenient location to serve those members who live nearby."

The Seabrook branch will bring an innovative approach to its members. The traditional teller window will be replaced with an open floor plan that will allow members to more freely interact with member services representatives, while still maintaining confidentiality and security. There will also be a Technology Table with iPads for members to access additional services.

This Seabrook branch will join locations in Plaistow, N.H.; Lawrence, Mass., North Andover, Mass.; Methuen, Mass.; and Haverhill, Mass. in the Merrimack Valley Credit Union network. Members can expect to receive the same complete financial services in Seabrook as they can at the existing sites.
